Prospect City announced it has been engaged by ARAMARK to provide market talent intelligence and benchmarking for leadership succession.

In addition to a key talent scan to support succession planning, benchmarking and recruitment, Prospect City will provide its database technology to support ARAMARK leadership and the Prospect City team.

“Pipelining has become a popular alternative for clients who want to approach talent benchmarking as a partnership among highly qualified recruiters, researchers and corporate management”, added Robert Stein, President of Prospect City. “It’s a win for us and for our clients. In this case top talent is being identified and delivered to the CEO who will pass them along to an engaged search partner for final screening.”

Prospect City is an infrastructure services provider to executive recruiting firms and corporate recruiting functions within large organizations. The company leverages all of these relationships to provide pipelining services to corporate clients on behalf of recruiters and researchers willing to work under this platform.

ARAMARK is a $15B contract foodservice provider in the US. It offers corporate dining services and operates concessions at many sports arenas and other entertainment venues, while its ARAMARK Refreshment Services unit is a leading provider of vending and beverage services. The firm also provides facilities management services.
