

Chicago, IL – December, 2012

Prospect City announced it has been contracted by boutique executive search firm Elmcrest Partners to provide a Velvet database solution.

Velvet offers clients a secure and stable online database solution that is designed specifically for senior level recruitment. Each system is proprietary and customization is unlimited, resulting in a unique database for each client.

“Velvet is a key component within any dynamic search firm today. Its web-based and is easily accessible from any location and from any device, be it phone, iPad or computer.” said Robert Stein, President of Prospect City. “Our clients are confident in our ability to adjust to their needs while their business grows. It starts with making a one-time decision on a database that will never have to be replaced because of a business’s evolution.”

Prospect City is an infrastructure services provider to recruiting firms and corporate recruiting functions. The company develops and hosts technology for small, medium and large search firms. Menu-based solutions include database, VoIP telephony, website and email hosting, and accounting technology.

Elmcrest Partners is an executive search firm focused on the healthcare industry, recruiting information officers for healthcare organizations and cross industry corporations. In addition to extensive knowledge of health care IT its owners have a 25-year track record of identifying and recruiting IT executives across diverse industries.
