

Chicago, IL – January, 2014

Prospect City announced it has been engaged to provide market benchmarking and talent pipelining services to Hubbell Inc.

The $3B company makes electrical and electronic products for commercial, industrial, telecommunications, and utility applications. Its electrical segment, which accounts for more than two-thirds of sales, includes wiring, connector and grounding products, lighting fixtures and controls, and other electrical equipment used by electricians and electrical contractors and maintenance personnel. The power segment includes distribution, transmission, substation, and telecommunications products used by electric utilities.

Prospect City is a pipelining services provider to senior level corporate recruiting functions within large organizations. The company provides ongoing talent identification, assessment, tracking and introduction, specific to client needs around succession and benchmarking.
