

Chicago, IL – February, 2006

Prospect City announces its newest Velvet client, Keene Advisory Group, an executive search consulting firm based in Chicago. Through KAG, Eric Keene partners with Fortune 1000 and private client executives to assess staffing needs and develop executive search strategies. He consistently identifies, evaluates and recruits management talent for domestic and international clientele. Formerly with Russell Reynolds Associates, Eric served as a firm-wide leader on diversity and as a member of the Corporate Officers' practice.

Prospect City President Bob Stein has known Eric Keene for many years. "Eric and I have worked together at Russell Reynolds Associates and for a short period at Blackbird Partners. He is a terrific executive recruiter and has had great success building a strong diversity practice." KAG selected Velvet over several other options because of its intuitiveness and simplicity. The system is hosted offsite and stores documents as well, making them text searchable in the process. In addition, Keene refers to the customization and immediate turnaround as "unheard of today".

The selection of Prospect City's search management system continues its string of success with prospective clients. Since its development, every client company that purchased the Velvet line of solutions remains a client today. "It says something about our commitment to the individual needs of our clients, our response time, the flexibility of our product, and ultimately about customer service, added Stein."

Prospect City is an infrastructure services provider to executive recruiting firms and corporate recruiting functions within large organizations. The company provides technology, research, administration and accounting services to senior level executive search firms.
