

Chicago, IL – January, 2009

Prospect City announces it has expanded its relationship with RHR International by serving as a key, integrated advisor to its management due diligence process. The company will be providing component analysis and third-party reference checking for select projects.

Prospect City is positioned well to serve RHR in its effort to provide a broad perspective in its management due diligence process. In addition to our expertise, we have close relationships with senior level executive recruiters who can add another level of service for RHR and their clients, including expanded, innovative reference checking.

“Our firm has worked with RHR for many years and continues to serve the company and their clients. Their level of integrity and professionalism makes us terrific partners in our efforts to improve executive talent”, said Robert Stein, President of Prospect City. “We really enjoy working with RHR and the mutual benefits of this relationship are terrific. We expect to continue to serve them well.”

Prospect City is an infrastructure services provider to executive recruiting firms and corporate recruiting functions within large organizations. The company provides recruiting research and technology, administration and accounting services to corporate recruitment functions and senior level executive search firms.
